

Websites

The learning process continues at home!

Here are some useful sites you can browse through, alone or with your child, in order to accompany him or her. Be sure to stop by each of them; every child has different needs and views. Click on the image to go on the website.

Here is a very good website for interrogations about grammar. They have a correction tool for your texts, language, grammar and vocabulary articles. They also have tons of infographics like this one to help you unscramble this new language in your head.

Have a good reading!

Incredible website to read and watch videos about science and general knowledge. Go in the Explore Wonders section and choose a subject that interests you and learn new things! You can first watch the videos and then read the text and activate the reader so you can listen to it at the same time.

A website gem to learn another language. They give you a lot of exercises and reminders to practice your vocabulary. (grade 3 to 6)

---

Beautifully made website to create long stories, short stories and poems. There are tons of pretty images and a very simple creating tool.

I made an account for our class so you can create your stuff and I will have access to it. I will be able to put them up on our website.

Here is a page to help you understand the website : Storybird tutorial

MAKE BELIEFS COMIX®

Simple and easy to use website to create your own comics. If you ever create a good one in English, send it to me and I will publish it on the class website!

Play games with Elmo, watch videos of Big Bird, colour Cookie Monster and count with Ernie and Bert. Good for young learners. (Grade 1-3)

Many, many.... many games adapted to all levels. Math (in English) can also be practiced on this website.

---

Explore the world of Dr. Seuss. You can read, listen and watch a lot of content. Very interactive website.

---

Lots of games, some to learn English and some to learn other things, but all in English!

---

A good number of games with vocabulary, actions and expressions from themes seen in class.

Website for teachers but you can also find online games to learn English.
